

BOUTIQUE
ALL INCLUSIVE

Up to 35% Off

BOOK NOW

Advertise with us

Report this ad

HomeAbout UsPrivacy/Terms of UseContact Us

food | family | fitness | travel

lizventures

subscribe! our latest posts
right to your inbox

RecipesFamilyFitnessTravelCurrent Giveaways

You are here: Home / Travel / Sightseeing in Carmel-by-the-Sea: Photo Journal

Sightseeing in Carmel-by-the-Sea: Photo Journal

October 26, 2015 By Chanelle — 52 Comments

 0

 Tweet  57

  Submit

160

There is something beautiful to see everywhere you look in Carmel-by-the-Sea, and the romance of it all was painfully obvious as I explored alone, wishing there was someone with me to share it with. But as nice as it would have been to have a companion with me on the trip, I did still have a lot of fun walking around by myself and feeling free to pause and take artistic photos without annoying someone.

Here are some of the things I saw throughout my trip that made me certain that I want to return to Carmel someday.

A perfectly framed tree

Calaveras in a store window for Halloween

The entry to a courtyard

My view of the Harrison Memorial Library

A building modeled after a hotel in Prague

An artist's tools of the trade

Mid-century furniture at a cute place I stopped at for lunch

My cheese, toast, and paté at said cute place

Tasting wine at Wrath. The tasting room employees were so pleasant!

We got lucky and had two clear and sunny days in a row!

The Walker Residence, by Frank Lloyd Wright

I hope you enjoyed this trip to Carmel-by-the-Sea through my eyes...er, lens. It truly is a dreamy place, and one that I will visit again for sure.

More posts like this:

Breaking Away from the Everyday

An Easterner in Cali: Carmel-by-the-Sea

ice people's lives
ugh the POWER OF